

EARTH PROJECT PRESENTS

Announcement of the 2nd “Momiji no Yakai” Debutante & Charity Party

“The Momiji no Yakai” is a charity party held by the Earth Project (Ms. Maria Kouzuki, Executive Head). The party is highly evaluated as one of the few, real social functions in Japan, where leading individuals from every sector of Japanese society come together, including top executives, scholars, artists, and intellectuals. “The Momiji no Yakai” is also one of the Earth Project’s activities for the purpose of conserving the global environment and fostering of human resources for the next generation.

The Earth Project continuously appeals to the general public for protecting the global environment through publications, lecture circuits, parties, events, and other various activities.

The portion of proceeds raised from publications and events will be donated to the WWF Japan (World Wide Fund for Nature Japan) and used for the preservation of the natural environment.

GIST OF “THE MOMIJI NO YAKAI”

Real social circles should be a forum for ladies and gentlemen as well as a stage for younger generations where they learn about contributing to society, becoming a role model for next generations, and further developing as human beings. This kind of activities has already been established in Europe, while in Japan there are few social functions and charity balls for the conservation of global environment. The Earth Project considers major roles of “the Momiji no Yakai” as follows:

1. To re-form the consciousness of leading individuals from every sector
2. To encourage businesses and higher socioeconomic groups for donation and social contribution
3. To provide educational processes for younger people who lead the future
